'IS ILL CONCEIVED'

Severe Criticism Made On Wilson Plan For Peace Of World

(Reuter's Service)

Boston, Mass., Sept. 1 (delayed).—Senator Lodge in the course of a speech before the Republican League of Massachusetts condemned the League of Nations.

The League is a failure, he said, and had not accomplished anything. It might be possible to ratify the League Covenant with ratifications, pursued the Senator, and it then might be necessary to enlarge and strengthen the reservations or on the other hand it might be best to put aside "an ill-drafted and ill-conceived League" and take up a new agreement with the nations under the leadership of the United States.

Senator Lodge complained that the League had never interfered with regard to the Russian invasion of Poland and Persia, or the Armenian and Fiume questions. The League, he concluded, was nothing but a political alliance.

U.S. LAWMAKER URGES JAPAN TO HEED SUFFRAGIST

American Takes Hand In Nipponese Politics While Guest Of Islanders

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 4.—The ex-Premier, Marquis Okuma, entertained the American Congressmen at his Tokio mansion today. The guests included many prominent Japanese men and women.

In the course of a speech of welcome, Marquis Okuma congratulated the Congressmen on their full enforcement of prohibition and the feminine members of the party on their acquisition of the suffrage.

WANTS CO-OPERATION

Marquis Okuma urged co-operation between America and Japan in developing and unifying China. He recalled that Japan had not protested against America's occupation of Hawaii and the Philippines, recognising that it was for their ultimate good; Japan, indeed, had been careful not to put any obstacles in America's way.

He urged that Americans should adopt a similar attitude towards Japan's annexation of Korea and her actions in Siberia, and give Japan a chance "to carry out her good intentions, especially that of enhancing the welfare and prosperity of Koreans."

ADVOCATES SUFFRAGE

Representative Henry Z. Osborne, of California, responding, said that he hoped that Japan would follow America's example and introduce woman suffrage. He recognised the possibility of co-operation with regard to China and the necessity for unification of that country. He expressed confidence in the efficacy of the Consortium.

COAL MINERS IN ENGLAND STRIKE SEPTEMBER 25

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 2.—The Conference of Miners' delegates has decided to hand in strike notices in all districts so as to terminate not later than September 25.

London, September 2.—A special meeting of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress has been called at Parliament to-night to discuss the threatened coal strike.

It must not be assumed that the miners' decision means that a strike is inevitable, for the strike notices do not expire before September 25 and much may happen before then.

Although it is stated that there will be no peace move or compromise by the miners, it is considered certain that the other Trade Unions and particularly the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades-Union Congress, which is meeting at Portsmouth next week, will make desperate efforts for peace, and that following the example of the railway strike, a negotiating body to meet the Government will be appointed.

The situation, therefore though grave and critical, is by no means hopeless.

ENGINEERS DISPUTE

London, September 2.—A crisis in the engineering trades has arisen through a dispute between electricians and employers as to whether foremen must be members of the Electrical Trades-Union.

A foreman at Cammel, Laird and Co's. works at Sheffield resigned from the Union and the men demanded his dismissal, failing his rejoining the Union.

The employers refused to dismiss the foreman and issued lockout notices for September 4. During the negotiations, the Ministry of Labor intervened, but this evening the collapse of the negotiations is announced. Consequently the employers' lockout comes into operation on Saturday.

The seriousness of the crisis is due to the fact that the electricians are key men in many industries, with the result that a prolonged lockout will ultimately stop the whole engineering industry.

Japanese Denies Designs On China

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 4.—Baron Hayashi, the new Japanese Ambassador to the Court of St. James, arrived in London today.

Interviewed by Reuter, the Ambassador declared: "Cordial Anglo-Japanese friendship is the mainstay of peace and order in the Far East. It is particularly necessary at present for the peace of the world."

"There has been much misunderstanding of Japanese policy concerning China. The Japanese Government is solely concerned with fully recognising Japan's obligations towards her neighbor. Its program is mostly (sic) fair. It is second to none in insistence on the open door in China. Its desire is to work in cordial co-operation with that great Republic."

SOVIET JOKING IS VIEW OF FOMER PREMIER

Soviet Makes Rich Men Poor Is Discovery Of British Diplomat

(Reuter's Service)

London, September 2.—Mr. Balfour, replying to M. Kameneff's note of August 26, expresses satisfaction that the Soviet have renounced their demand for the creation of a Polish workers' militia, but denies that the British Government ever recognised that the limitation of the Polish army to 50,000 men was a just peace condition. The British Government merely declared, Mr. Balfour says, that this condition would not be considered sufficient ground for active intervention.

Mr. Balfour said he regards the Soviet's statement that the proposed civic militia was a concession to Poland as "evidently a jest" but, "a jest intended to disguise the true character of Soviet diplomacy and certainly requiring explanation."

CONCEALMENT ADMITTED

Owing to the concealment by the Soviet of the intended nature of the Polish civic militia, which concealment is now admitted, the British Parliament which, at its adjournment, was very anxious about the Polish situation, separated under the impression that Poland would neither lose her national independence nor her legitimate frontier. Parliament and the country were certainly deceived, Mr. Balfour continues, and the reason for it may be conjectured, but has not been avowed.

Dealing with Tchitcherin's suggestion that the British objections to the civic militia proposal were due to the fact that the civic militia must be composed of workmen, Mr. Balfour declares that that is an error. The objections would have been as strong, he says, if it had to be composed of millionaires.

WAGE EARNERS

Finally, as regards Tchitcherin's comparison of the conditions of the wage-earning populations of Soviet Russia and Great Britain, Mr. Balfour says he does not doubt that there are inequalities in Great Britain, which now do not exist in Russia, observing that he has never for a moment questioned the complete efficacy of Soviet methods for making rich men poor, but that he fears that in the more difficult task of making poor men richer, the Soviet has failed.

London, September 2.—A Polish communique states: "General Budienny, after advancing beyond Zamosc (50 miles S. E. of Lublin) was attacked by General Haller's army group in the rear, and finding himself surrounded began to retreat. He undertook several cavalry charges in spite of the enormous losses involved, in an endeavor to force a passage through the Polish armies. In the course of the fighting General Budienny's army was destroyed, with the exception of a few detachments.

"The retreat of the remaining Bolshevik soldiery is completely disorderly and the pursuit continues.

"The war booty captured is great. Amongst the Bolshevik killed were

Peking, September 5.—Another Russian delegation arrived in Peking on Friday from Harbin, representing the local Governments of Chita, Vladivostok and Blasoveschensk with a view to entering into commercial relations with China.

Yourin's delegation which apparently represents both Verdhne-Udinsk and Moscow, has not made much headway up to the present towards a commercial agreement, although the Waichiaopu has appointed three of its staff to enter into unofficial negotiations with it and some meetings have already been held.

TAKING EVERYTHING

Vladivostok, September 4.—Ataman Semenoff is busily engaged in evacuating everything worth taking from Zabaikal, leaving the country without Government, without an army and without funds.

General Hreshatitsk and M. Vinogradoff, Chairman of the temporary Assembly at Chita are daily telegrahping to Vladivostok appealing for assistance on behalf of Zabaikal.

The Vladivostok Government have accordingly decided to send a number of prominent members of the Assembly to Chita to organise a provisional Government.

General Lokvitsky is expected in Vladivostok shortly to negotiate with the Government regarding the disposal of the remnants of General Kapppel's army.

FINANCIAL WORRIES

Vladivostok, September 6.—The rouble is rapidly depreciating and the Government is in financial difficulties. The Minister of Finance is resigning.

The employes at the Government establishments, including the Ussuri Railway and the shipbuilding works, which employ 3000 men, not having received their wages for August, are threatening to strike. They demand their wages on a gold rouble basis, payable in the present currency at the daily rate of exchange.

PRISONERS WANT CHANGE

German, Austrian and Hungarian prisoners of war have requested from the Amur Government permission to proceed to Vladivostok. The Military Council has refused the request stating that the Amur Province is in a state of siege and besides the Soviet Government is concentrating prisoners and intends to repatriate them overland.

PATROKAL INCIDENT

The First Officer of the Patrokal which was seized by armed men who secretly steamed her out of Vladivostok harbor for an unknown destination on the night of August 15 has returned here. He reports that the Patrokal is at Genzan in Korea and that her captors are in a deplorable condition having no money. They apparently intend to remain at Genzan, according to the First Officer.

Note.—The Japanese papers reported on September 1 that the Patrokal had arrived at Nagasaki "laden with Bolshevik literature."

Paris, September 3.—According to the Times, the Bolsheviks report that an explosion on board the Bolshevik warship Red Dawn resulted in the vessel sinking, and 130 members of the crew losing their lives.

SUGAR BOWL RIOT LATEST AMERICAN FOOD UPRISING

Fights Are Result When Real Sugar Takes Molasses Place On Table

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 2.—What is described as a "Sugar bowl riot" broke out today among the 750 immigrants in the dining rooms of the great aliens inspection depot at Ellis Island.

It appears that today for the first time since the war real sugar was served in place of the war-time molasses and numbers of the immigrants had not seen sugar since 1914. Consequently, when the sugar bowls appeared, the scramble for their contents quickly degenerated into a series of free fights, and the early birds who had poured the contents of the bowls into their pockets became the objects of a general attack.

Emergency guards, cooks and kitchen-maids were rushed on to the scene and order was eventually restored, but not before numbers of aliens had got broken ribs and other severe injuries, which necessitated their going into hospital.

Korea Christianised, Salvationists Told

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, September 1.—Salvation Army Commissioner Haggard, who was formerly in Korea and is now in command of the Salvation Army in South Africa, in the course of a lecture on Korea here today, said that Korea today was the most Christian nation in the Far East.

Those Koreans who had embraced Christianity, he said, had given a testimony of their devotion to it by enduring persecution and death for their belief.

Tokio, September 4.—The Kokumin says that the police are contemplating introducing regulations prohibiting discrimination against Chinese and Koreans in Japanese schools, boarding-houses, etc. with a view to combating the anti-Japanese animus.

Men Are Rescued From U.S. Submarine

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, September 3.—All on board the U.S. submarine S5 (4 officers and 26 men) have now been rescued. Some are suffering from shock, but none are seriously injured. The submarine was submerged in a disabled state East of Cape Henlopen and was discovered by a transport which espied a telephone buoy bobbing on the ocean which had been released from the submarine and from which a gong was sounding. The transport picked up and examined the buoy and found a telephone apparatus attached from which voices from the depths cried "We are submarine S5, submerged for 36 hours; air is running short and machinery is damaged; send help."

It appears that the telephone buoy is still in the experimental state. It is releasable from inside the submarine; and the gong sounds for a long distance when the buoy reaches the surface. At night the buoy sends out electric light flashes.

SPAIN'S PRIMATE DIES

(Reuter's Service)

Madrid, September 2.—The death is announced of Cardinal Guisasola, Primate of Spain.

BIG MISSIONARY PARTY ARRIVES ON EMPRESS SHIP

Of 155 Cabin Passengers On Steamer 110 Are Church Workers In China

Of the 155 first class passengers that arrived in Shanghai on Sunday on the Empress of Japan of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services 110 were missionaries. On its run here from Japan the steamer only touched the outermost edges of the typhoon that was sweeping the seas to the southward and the newcomers reported a pleasant voyage.

In the missionary party were 45 new workers recruited by the Southern Baptist Convention following an extensive campaign to enlist the services of volunteers for work in foreign fields. Thirteen veteran missionaries representing the same board and returning from furlough also were aboard.

CAME 31 YEARS AGO

Among the veteran missionaries who arrived yesterday on the Empress of Japan were Dr. and Mrs. G. P. Bostwick of upper Anhui. Dr. Bostwick first came to China 31 years ago. They have just returned from a year's furlough in America, where Dr. Bostwick took a prominent part in the $75,000,000 campaign of the Southern Baptist Convention.

After an absence of seven years, Dr. and Mrs. Adrian Taylor returned to China yesterday on the steamer. They will first visit Yangchow, where they were formerly members of the Southern Baptist Mission, and then proceed to Peking, where Dr. Taylor will serve as professor of surgery in the Rockefeller Foundation Medical College. While in America, Dr. Taylor was on the faculty of the Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Ethel Pierce, who recently graduated from Taylor Medical College, returned to China yestrday with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Pierce in order to join the Southern Baptist Mission at Yangchow. The young physician was born in Kiangsu where her parents have been engaged in mission work for the past 29 years.

OTHERS ON BOARD

Among a group of missionaries who came to China 20 years ago were Mr. George W. Green, Mr. William B. King and Mr. L. W. Pierce. Mr. Pierce is returning to his work at Yungchau and his daughter, Dr. Ethel Pierce, is coming as a medical missionary. His son is also on board; he will enter school in China. Mr. King and Mr. Green are both dead, but a son and daughter of each are fellow passengers of Mr. Pierce and his children. Dr. Mary King, who has been in missionary work in China for more than 35 years, returns to teach in a private school, her young brother will attend school. Mr. George W. and Miss Valeria Green will engage in school work at Canton, where their mother is living.

Three former army or naval surgeons are in the party. Dr. A. L. Tompkins of Dayton, O., and Dr. S. O. Pruitt of Anderson, S. C. were surgeons in the army, and Dr. George N. Herring of Wilmington, N. C., was a surgeon in the navy during the Great War.

Dr. Adrien S. Taylor, who returned to the United States seven years ago to teach and study at John Hopkins University, is returning to Peking as professor of surgery in Peking University. He was a missionary for seven years. Miss Betty Stephens, who has been an intructor in the University of Oklahoma, will teach in a girls' school at Shanghai.

SOME UNUSUAL WORK

A unique piece of missionary work has been performed by Mr. W. E. Sallee of Waco, Texas, a member of the Baptist group. He persuaded cattlemen and other persons gathered together into sending to China 24 head of fine young cattle to be used to build good herds around. They will come with a special caretaker on the C.P.O. steamship Montcalm on her next trip from Vancouver.

Dr. Chen, editor of the Chinese Christian Advocate of Shanghai, is returning after attending the Methodist Conference at Des Moines, Iowa.

Dr. Watson, who first came to China as a medical missionary in 1885, is returning. During the war he was in France as a member of the British Expeditionary Forces. He has again volunteered for service in China and has been assigned the direction of a British hospital in the interior. He is accompanied by Mrs. Watson and their child.

LOCAL CANTONESE DECLARE WAR ON KWANGSI CLIQUE

Criticising Generals Lu Yung-ting and Mo Yung-ling, the Kwangsi militarists who are playing havoc in Kwangtung in struggling against General Chen Chiung-ming, 5,842 Cantonese residents here yesterday despatched a lengthy telegram to the two Southern war lords, demanding their disarmament and threatening to crush them in the same way the people crushed the Anfuites.

The message drew a striking similarity between the Anfu and the Kwangsi cliques in their struggles for exploitation and in their militaristic organisations. Their defeat at the hands of the popular armies are also the same, the telegram showed.

The Kwangtung troops, though not so well-equipped or fed as the Kwangsi forces are successful everywhere in their campaign. The initial clash resulted in Kwangtung's capture of over ten districts, it pointed out.

The message further enumerated the crimes committed by the Kwangsi officials since their occupation of Kwangtung, including the resumption of the "fantan" gambling, the cultivation of poppy, the exaction of heavy taxes, the sale of public property, the shooting of newspapermen and other innocent people, the seizure of arms and the embezzlement of public funds.

"The occupation of Kwangsi troops in Kwangtung brought in several thousands of robbers, beggars and soldiers and several hundreds of rotten officials to the province," said the telegram in part.

"Kwangtung should be ruled by Kwangtung people. Kwangtung then shall be satisfied. How would the Kwangsi men like our governing them and do to them what you are doing to us?

"Compare yourself with William and our late war lord, Marshal Tuan. Your are far—far inferior! Even they had to suffer for their folly. Do you think you can escape the calamity?

"Lay down your arms. Return the financial, military and administrative right to the Kwangtung men and live in retirement! Then and only then, you may enjoy the rest of your lives in safety. Otherwise William and Tuan shall be your predecessors!"

Two Sailors Found Guilty Of Assault

British Police Court Hands Them Over To Naval Authorities

For assaulting a Chinese named Chang Tsz-chu, two sailors, A. Scott and A. J. Cooper of the British Gunboat Cockchafer, were convicted yesterday in the British Police Court. The accused were handed over to the naval authorities.

Complainant who appeared with his head bandaged, said he was employed in Kwo Cotton Mill in the accountants' office. He remembered the morning of the trouble. He came out of an alleyway opposite the race course about 12:15 a.m. and called a ricsha. As he got into the ricsha he received a blow in the back. He fell forward on to the road. He turned round, saw the two accused, and asked them "What's the matter you lick me for?" He thought they must be drunk and called for the police. On hearing this they chased him, and one of them threw him to the ground. His face and eyes were bruised. Witness got up and ran for the police. At the New World he saw a Chinese policeman and asked him to arrest accused. As he was speaking to the policeman the accused approached and he ran away again. The two men continued to chase him. He was so weak that he was unable to run any more and seeing some people in foreign clothes, he asked them to report the matter at the station.

He saw the accused running away. Later, he saw them in the police station. Witness was sent to hospital and went home in a motor car. He had been confined to bed since. The doctor was still attending him and he had a nurse looking after him.

Cross examined—He never said any of the men were drunk. If he did, they should prosecute him. He would deserve to be assaulted.

Accused—He did say we were drunk. He urged the Chinese mob on.

Witness—There were a lot of people at the entrance to the New World. Some of the crowd followed accused.

In answer to Mr. King—He did a lot of running. He was very much hurt. At that time his spirit was up and he was able to run. He got worse after he got home and quieted down. He was 43 years of age. He was quite certain he said nothing to the sailors and he did not know why they assaulted him. He thought they must have been drunk.

A Chinese witness corroborated and said the crowd of Chinese wanted to assault the accused. He did not know the complainant.

Cross-examined—The foreigner fell to the ground later. That was at the corner of Kweichow and Ningpo Roads. Complainant was not there.

Cooper stated that complainant said: "I saved: You have got too much drink." Scott said "go away" and gave him a shove. Later complainant and witness struggled and fell down. To protect himself witness hit complainant who had kicked him in the shins. Witness was angry. A crowd assembled and looked aggressive so Scott and he walked towards the Police Station, although they had been walking to Bubbling Well.

Scott said he accidentally knocked against complainant who said he "saveed they had too much drink." They had only had four bottles of beer each between 8:30 p.m. and 12:30 a.m. The complainant ran at them. Accused did not kick him as he was getting into a ricsha.

Mr. King—Why does this elderly Chinese run at you?

Accused—Because he was so excited.

Mr. King said there certainly was an assault. There might have been misunderstanding but he did not think the Chinese would start this trouble. He hoped, for the sake of their uniform, they did not intend to hurt complainant as much as he had been hurt. He would enter a conviction and hand over accused to the naval authorities.

FOREIGN OFFICER OF JAPAN SHOT BY COUNTRYMAN

Delay In Settlement Of Claim Against China Is Blamed

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, September 4.—Mr. R. Saito, chief of the first section of the commercial bureau of the foreign office, was shot and seriously wounded in the abdomen, by one Nichiyama, an employe of the Amoy branch of the Kawakita Electric Company, in Mr. Saito's office today.

Nichiyama then fled from the foreign office and rushed to the Police headquarters, where he voluntarily gave himself up.

There were two officials present in Mr. Saito's room who witnessed the shooting, while many persons saw Nichiyama's precipitate flight from the foreign office. At all who attempted to stop him as he ran, he brandished his pistol.

Mr. Saito was at once conveyed to hospital where he is lying unconscious.

Nichiyama has a claim pending against the Chinese government, as a result of his having been shot in Fukien province awhile ago. The foreign office is presenting the claim to Peking.

The accepted theory of the motive for the attack on Mr. Saito is that Nichiyama blamed that official for delay in the settlement of the claim.

Says He Can Change Rooster To A Hen

Scientist Can't Promise Egg From Chanticleer, Though

Paris, July 24.—Although he has not succeeded thus far in obtaining eggs from roosters, Prof. Pezard, who is taking part in the congress of psychologists at the Sarbonne, says that after fifteen years of experiments with fowls he has obtained miraculous results, which prove that it is not impossible to change at will the sex of barnyard fowl.

Prof. Pezard's revelations soon will be presented before the French Academy of Sciences. Meanwhile he refuses to divulge details of his experiments and has warned his confreres against fantastic hypotheses, as there is nothing available yet to prove that the inversion of the human sex is logical.

(Reuter's Service)

Marion, Ohio, September 1 (delayed).—Senator Warren Harding in the course of a speech here said that the cornerstone of the foreign policy of the Republican party would be to regain for America the moral leadership which she had lost, "when ambition had sought to superimpose the reactionary theory of discredited autocracy on the progressive principle of growing democracy."

The Republican candidate for the Presidency pledged a helping hand to Mexico but declared that all the resources of the United States would guarantee the protection of American life.

The speaker described his own proposed peace association, which he advocated in place of the League of Nations, as an international association for conference and a world court for verdicts on international questions.

PICTURES RAT AS MAN'S CHIEF FOE

Biologist Says It Has Caused More Deaths Than All Wars Of History

LOSSES IN AMERICA

Property Destroyed Figured As $200,000,000 A Year—Prevention Possible

New York, July 25.—The rat is responsible for more deaths among human beings than all the wars of history, according to David E. Lantz, assistant biologist of the Bureau of Biological Survey, who calls the house rat the most destructive animal in the world.

"Not all the fatal epidemics of the past were bubonic plague, but enough of them have been so identified to show that almost every century of the Christian era has had at least one great pandemic of this scourge which destroyed millions of the world's population," he says in a report to the Department of Agriculture.

"The great plague of London which killed more than half the inhabitants that did not flee from the city was by no means the worst outbreak recorded. The plague called 'black death' devastated Europe for fifty years of the fourteenth century, destroying two-thirds to three-fourths of the population of large territories and one-fourth of all the people, or about 25,000,000 persons.

"Since 1896 plagues have carried away nearly 9,000,000 of the population of India alone. The disease is still intrenched in Asia, Africa and Australia and South America, and cases of it have occurred in Europe and in North America.

"Through the fleas that infest them, rats are almost wholly responsible for the perpetuation and transmission of bubonic plague, and it has been proved also that rats are active, although not exclusive, agents in spreading pneumonic plague. Only the prompt measures taken by the United States Public Health Service against these animals prevented disastrous epidemics of plague in San Francisco, Seattle and Hawaii in 1909, in Porto Rico in 1912, and in New Orleans in 1914.

"The economic loss due to rats is astounding. No extensive or exact statistics on the subject are available, but surveys of conditions existing in a few of the older cities of the United States show that losses due to rats are almost in exact ratio to the populations. In rural districts the losses are much greater in proportion to inhabitants than in cities.

"Assuming that there are in the United States only as many rats as people, and that each rat in a year destroys property valued at $2, the total yearly damage is about $200,000,000. To this must be added the expense of fighting rats, including the large sums paid for traps and poisons, the keep of dogs and cats and the labor involved. In addition the loss of human efficiency due to diseases disseminated by the rat should be considered.

"Civilisation and science have by no means spoken their last word about the means of combating this greatest plague of the human race. A building can be made ratproof—why not a farmstead, a street, a village, a city or a seaport? If rats cannot be exterminated they at least can be repressed in this country, and at the same time effective barriers can be erected against the landing of fresh hords. Up to the present time, however, few efforts have been made to find out the way, or even to apply properly the means already at command. It is high time to begin.

"To combat the rat successfully is largely a building problem. Buildings should be so constructed as to exclude the animals from shelter and food. When this is done, individual and community efforts to destroy rats will give satisfaction and lasting results. The program may be regarded by many as too expensive. Will it be too costly? What do rats cost now? If half the money now spent in feeding and fighting rats could be expended in wisely planned and well-executed co-operative efforts for rat repression, it would be possible within a few years nearly to rid the country of its worst animal pest, to reduce losses from its depredations by at least 90 percent and to free the land completely from the fear of bubonic plague."

WHEN BABY IS CROSS AND SLEEPLESS

When baby is cross and sleepless there is something wrong and the little one is taking the only means he has of telling it. Under such circumstances the temptation to administer a sleeping draught, or opiate of some kind, is often great, but don't do it unless expressly ordered by a competent docter who has seen the child. Instead give him Baby's Own Tablets, which are guaranteed to contain no opiates; they send the child to sleep simply because they remove the causes of his sleeplessness and make him feel good and comfortable.

"My baby was not feeling well and was cross and troublesome. I gave her several doses of Baby's Own Tablets and they did her so much good that I would not be without them for many times the amount they cost. I strongly advise every mother to give them a fair trial," writes Mrs. F. Emery, of 8 Barclay Place, Grand Rapids, Mich, U.S.A.

Baby's Own Tablets are a remedy for simple fever, indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea. They make teething easy and destroy worms. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Mr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

SCHOOLBOYS ARE URGED TO TAKE PART IN CONTEST FOR SWIMMERS AT ANNUAL GALA

Annual Event Of Shanghai Club Is To Be Made Of Interest To Youngsters Under 14 Years Of Age

In connection with the Shanghai International Swimming Club's annual swimming gala and aquatic sports next Friday and Saturday nights, Mr. McGregor announces that in addition to the events set out in these columns last Sunday there will be a race for schoolboys 14 years of age or under if sufficient entries are received.

As the admission tickets to the gala cost only one solitary Mexican and are available for the two nights it is anticipated that the "house" will be sold out before Friday—hence the wary fans will purchase early, so as to avoid disappointment, as in the interests of the competitors even the standing room will be strictly limited.

CHAMPION DIVER

Mr. A. Gutierrez, the champion diver, who won the handsome "Lusitano" Cup" outright last year, has presented another cup to take its place, and it is safe betting that keen rivalry will center round this event. Mr. Gutierrez has been the recipient of many compliments on his sporting and generous action.

The "Goodnight" race which is last on the Saturday night's program just ahead of the water polo match between the home club and the Shanghai Rowing Club is open to all gala competitors who have not won a first or second prize in any individual event at this year's function.

Among the fine array of prizes, which quite surpass those put up for any other local club's gala, is a beautiful shield for the leading competitor in the grand aggregate of this year's gala events. The lucky members of the fair sex for whom their respective champions secure the well selected prizes in the Two-lengths Ladies' Sweepstakes will have every reason to be satisfied with the prize committee as well as with their special representatives in the race.

ORCHESTRA ON HAND

"Requests" for the orchestra selections may be left with Mr. Encarnacao, though Prof. d'Aquino may be relied on as usual to cater to the popular taste in this regard.

A special service of tramcars has been arranged for both nights of the gala: so the spectators and competitors alike need have no worries about the late hour at which the entertainments may close. Of course, every effort will be made to hasten things along, and to obviate those tedious waits between events which have somewhat marred the enjoyment of other galas, but the bill of fare is a long one on both evenings and should be sat right through.

Navy Diving Champion To Compete In Olympic Games

Lieutenant Joseph F. Dunn, of New York, twice national fancy diving champion, is in Antwerp as a member of the American Olympic team to compete in the men's high and fancy diving contests. HANKOW LAWN BOWLS TEAM IS DUE NEXT WEEK

Interport Match To Be Played September 15; Hongkong Team Also Coming

(BY "SKIP")

Hankow Interport Team

The four that will represent Hankow in the forthcoming Interport games with Shanghai are Messrs. J. W. Burtwell, G. V. Miller, S. J. Godwin and W. J. Paul, with Capt. Milligan as reserve. The team is billed to arrive on the s.s. Kiangshin on Tuesday, the 14th and the Interport match with Shanghai's best will in all probability be played on Wednesday, the 15th.

After the Interport match the visitors will meet all the various Clubs in rotation. Hongkong should arrive on or before the 20th, in which case Hankow will meet them before leaving. The team to represent Shanghai has not yet been selected but the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Association can be relied upon to pick the best four possible.

All the Club fixtures are now drawing to a close and with the exception of the Junior Golf Club versus Lawn Bowls Club match next Sunday at the Race course there is nothing further doing in the Inter Club games. All interest therefore, after this week will be centered on the Interport games and the Pairs Final, which should be played off soon.

BILLINGS HEADS CRICKET LINE-UP

The team that will represent the Shanghai Cricket Club in the match Friday and Saturday with Tientsin has been chosen and is composed of the following: Billings, captain, Brook, Hansell, Hayward, Leach, Muriel, O'Hara, Ollerdessen, Quayle and Spencer. Reserves Clifford, Allison and McMeekin.

The Tientsin team will arrive here tomorrow night and following the match a dinner will be given for the visitors Saturday at the Shanghai Club.

'Bugs' Baer Reports The Political Yacht Race

Political Sandy Hook, Ohio.—Skipper Harding grabbed the campaign tiller on the Republican challenger yesterday and thinks he is steering.

The challenger is staking Skipper Wilson to an eight-year handicap. Skipper Woody wanted twelve, but the San Francisco Yacht Club cut his sail area down to cornplaster size. That eight-year handicap is something the Democratic office defender will have a sweet time stepping over. It looks as if the White House chinaware will be hooked off American soil and spend a set of years in Ohio. Skipper Harding has two legs on the cup, the Democrats are on their last legs and the League of Nations is dead from the waist up and never had any legs.

The Skipper was slow is crossing the line. He jockeyed for position between the Marion Barbers' Fife and Drum Corps and the Zanesville Visiting Firemen, Hook and Eye Company, No. 11. Finally he caught a favorable wind and his spinnaker vest slowly bellied out, while his Adam's apple went aloft in his throat halyards. His jiblets topsails were flapping in the breeze, so the Skipper hauled in his royal polka dotted necksails and flew his swallow tailjibs at half mast.

Approaching the League of Nations buoy, the skipper hemmed and hawed, indicating the wind had died down and that he was in the buildums. Running up his baby jibtalk, he tacked away from the High Cost of Living marker and sailed Eight Points into the wind.

Skipper Cox can sail straighter into the wind than Skip Harding. He doesn't tack on the League of Nations leg, but sails Fourteen Points plumb into the ash can.

Skip Harding then went into dry dock to have the barnacles scraped off his ideas while the Entertainment Committee handcuffed the Barbers' Band and charged the Skip's private stock up to campaign expenses. Official time was 4 hrs. 63 minutes. This is a birdie on this course. One less would have been an eagle and two would have been a cuckoo, the national bird of the Republican party.

There ain't much doubt that Skip Harding will cross the last leg ahead of Skip Cox, but he may lose on elapsed ballots. Skip Harding requested that he be allowed to place larger peak lapels on his dinner coat, which means an extra handicap of three napkins and eighteen ballots.

Late Yachtsman Stopped Fight Of Two Crown Princes

London, August 24.—The recent death in Vancouver, B. C., of Captain John Johncox, once a well-known British yacht skipper, has recalled here the story of two encounters the skipper had with the late King Edward when he was Prince of Wales.

The German Crown Prince, afterward Emperor William and the Prince of Wales had disagreed and were settling the argument with fists on the sands at Cowes when Johncox separated them and stopped the fight. The Crown Prince was said to have been so enraged that he boarded his yacht and returned to Germany.

On another occasion the Prince of Wales playfully tripped up Johncox at dusk on the Royal Yacht Squadron Green and the skipper used his fists freely against the future king. It was said Johncox failed to recognise the prince.

Before I'm Old

By GRANTLAND RICE

Before I'm old, too old to take
The rougher trails where few intrude
By rock-bound ways and tangled brake
That bar the way to solitude,
I'd like to turn one daring page
From life where keen adventure calls,
Something to dream of in old age
When I am held within four walls.

Life at its best is but a breath
Where many are content to slog
Along the road that leads to death,
Nor ever look beyond the fog;
They may be right—and yet I know
Old age would never sit alone
If I could see one red dawn glow
Upon a road no man had known.

THE TELLING STRAIN

There will be at least $5,000 for each man on the winning club in the next world baseball series.

The chance to walk under this shower of gold isn't getting on the nerves of the Athletics, the Tigers, the Phillies, the Braves, or some of the others.

But the strain is beginning to tell on the leaders. You can tell it by a certain amount of peevishness that crops out here and there—by lean faces and at times tired looking eyes says a New York sport scribe.

The prospect of a $5,000 haul for five or six ball games isn't to be taken too lightly.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given your children unless you or your physician know of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

SEES EUROPE SAVED BY LLOYD GEORGE

BERLIN CABINET IS WEAK

With Only Tottering Poland Between Germany And Soviet Army

BY G. H. PERRIS

London, July 18.—No man in the world has the experience and qualities for such leadership that Lloyd George brought to Spa and I believe the general judgment to be that no man but he could have brought the meeting to a successful issue. More than once it reached the point of rupture and each time his hand prevailed.

I am not competent to judge the Prime Minister in home affairs, but to a certainty he stands in the outer world, in a Europe that is suffering far beyond any pains we know, prominent as have been only few master spirits in international history. Joined to his extraordinary nerve and grasp of essentials, his bubbling humor, his curiosity about new men and movements and some of the very qualities that are cited against him at home—proneness to manœuver and transaction, openness and elasticity of mind and swift seizure of opportunity—gave immense access of strength to the influence England would have exerted in any case and on which Europe depends more than ever since the defection of America.

At Paris the British themselves were not yet prepared for England to play her natural part of moderator, and President Wilson at one end and Clemenceau at the other with their opposite crowds of worshippers made it almost an impossible part. San Remo meant above all that France was persuaded to agree to Germany being brought into the council. Boulogue was only the trying out of the possibilities of reparation and enforcement. Now came the crucial test.

If in the end the two old enemies could be got round this corner there was hope that force would be definitely supplanted on both sides by sane business discussions and the new Europe would be born. If not, the method of peace and its chief advocate would be badly prejudiced and fresh experiments in violence might complete the ruin of Central Europe.

The auspices were not propitious. Millerand could hardly keep his adversaries in hand, compelled to bring with them the powerful and implacable Stinnes. "When first I saw him I said, 'there goes a fanatic,'" was the Prime Minister's comment.

Both camps, in fact, were divided. The Liberal chiefs were more than a little afraid of the base forces behind them. The venal part of the Paris press shouted with joy when it learned that Lloyd George had been saddled with the disarmament proposition. They did not know their man. The Prime Minister sees disarmament as a general necessity, not merely as a penalty for the conquered.

Germany must effectively disarm, and that at once, or the whole process of peace is held up; but she must disarm herself and the difficulties of the case must be understood. The Government stands weakly between two extremes of class struggle, armed workmen and armed reactionaries. Both must have their strings drawn. The evident interest of the Allies is to aid the Government so situated and weak as it may be For the greatest of perils, that of another German aggression, it is anarchy.

In the height of the pressure at Spa I found Lloyd George looking widely over the prospect, sensible in particular of the mischief that might flow from the downfall of Polish ambition. Lenin had been brought and had brought his Soviets to accept conditions for the reopening of trade with Great Britain. A selfish England might have rested upon this success. The Prime Minister looked further.

He saw the Bolsheviki at Warsaw on the German frontier at the very moment when by the punitive occupation of the Ruhr the German people, or a large part of them, might have been thrown into a mad spasm of resistance. Such a conjunction would set half the continent ablaze.

Between one sitting of the Conference and another a great decision was taken. Poland must be saved from the consequences of her own folly. The Bolsheviki must stop or they would meet the strength of Britain and not only the ineffectual opposition of France.

Race War In East

Storm Center Shifts From Germany And Poland To Turkey, Balkans, Greece And Egypt—Radicals Hold Trump Card

BY C. F. BERTELLI

Paris, July 22.—The storm center of the world has now definitely shifted from Germany and Poland to the Near East. Turkey, the Balkans, Armenia, Egypt and Georgia are the battlefields of a new war wherein two-thirds of a million troops are already engaged, with the prospect of this number increasing to more than a million shortly.

The causes of this new and dangerous menace to chaotic Europe are three.

1. The Turkish Treaty, called the most iniquitous document ever prepared, and which Lloyd George obstinately refuses even to consider revising.

2. The Hythe decision to give Greece a free hand in the Orient, thus unchaining the myriad jealousies and hatreds of the Balkans and bringing a new crisis to Anglo-Italian affairs, since Greece is recognised as Italy's hereditary enemy.

3. The Soviet plans to seize India and Egypt, which are so feared by the British that hundreds of thousands of British troops, badly needed elsewhere, are being kept in those countries, thus leaving none to aid in the enforcing of the Turkish treaty.

PREDICTION COMES TRUE

The situation is exactly and exclusively prophesied by these despatches in 1914 and again in 1919.

The world of Islam, dominated and led by the directing genius of Nicolai Lenin, has risen at last in red and ruthless revolt against the white races of Europe.

Greece, 80,000.
France, 40,000.
England, 80,000.

Greece's troops are in Thrace, scene of Mustapha Kemal's strong stand. France has the majority of her soldiers around Constantinople and in Cicilia. Half of England's force of 80,000 is in Constantinople and the other half is scattered through northern Turkey, a large detachment of more than 30,000 being in full retreat from the port of Baku, followed by an army of 160,000 victorious Reds.

Opposed to this costly but comparatively small total of 200,000 allied troops is arraigned the might of the entire Near Orient—ill-armed, ill-equipped, but overwhelming in numbers and knowing the ground, besides being thoroughly able to withstand the rigors of campaigning in the trying Summer climate of Turkey.

They are divided as follows:

Army of the Russian Soviets, 200,000.
Turkish Nationalists, 35,000.
Insurgent Thracians, 26,000.
Bulgarian Insurgents, 20,000.
Potential Army Indian Nationalists 300,000.
Potential Army Egyptian Nationalists 200,000.
Total: Approximately $1,000,000.

The Turkish Nationalists have so far not joined the Soviets, but are on the friendliest terms with them. At the proper moment it is believed the Russians will throw their superior numbers into the scale, making the battle decisive.

In recent fighting alone the French have suffered 12,000 casualties, according to official statistics. British casualties have been slightly less.

The Allied line of communications north of Constantinople has been cut in a dozen places, making the fate of the 30,000 British force problematical. In the opinion of military tactitions such another debacle as Kut-el-Amara may result unless reinforcements, already refused, are sent.

Another and most dangerous element in the situation is the threatening attitude of the King of the Hedjaz, whose son, the Emir Faical, was deposed by the San Remo conference from his newly assumed kingdom of Syria, the French being given the mandate in response to their urgent demand.

FAICAL HOLDS WHIP HAND

The Emir controls a splendidly equipped army of 150,000, trained and formerly officered by the British. It was to this force that England largely owed the subjugation of Palestine. Experts say that should Faical choose he could easily defeat the small British army at present headquartered in Jerusalem, thus turning the flank on the British in Mesopotamia and the French in Syria and preventing either from coming to the aid of the Allied forces in Turkey.

Should Faical turn against the British and should the Turks be reinforced by the Red Army from George and Azerberjan, there is hardly any doubt that the Allies would be driven from eastern Asia.

Lenin's alleged plans, however, go farther than this. They are believed to include simultaneous uprisings in Egypt and India.

In the view of skilled diplomats here, Greece, led on by inordinate greed, and seeing the vast territory of Thrace slipping through her fingers, has become the catspaw of Great Britain, which has "reluctantly" consented to allow the Greek army to invade Thrace and Turkey untrammeled by strings or conditions from the Entente, thus incidentally pulling British chestnuts out of the fire, since Britain, with a garrison of 80,000 in Ireland and other large armies in Egypt and India, and with the heaviest tax budget in its history, can afford neither the men nor the money to wage a campaign in Turkey.

For Cox And The League

Note: The following argument for Cox and the League of Nations is contributed by Mr. Arthur G. West, a well known New York and Chicago newspaper man who is at present in Shanghai representing the Trans-Pacific Magazine and the Philadephia Public Ledger Service:

BY ARTHUR G. WEST

IN registering my vote for Governor Cox I would like to use a little of your valuable space to refute one of the "arguments" of the correspondent who signed himself "A Wilsonian in 1910."

This correspondent, in summing up his contention against the League of Nations, asks: "Why not think of America a little?"

This is a fine example of that sophistry with which the Republican obstructionists, whose opposition to the league is based solely and wholly upon their political and personal hatred of Woodrow Wilson, continue to deceive many otherwise intelligent Americans.

To use a street phrase, where do they get that stuff about "thinking of America a little?" Who gives them the right to say that those of us who do not agree with them on the league question are lacking in a proper regard for our country? Who delegated them to define our Americanism for us?

Apparently it never enters the thick heads of the opponents of the league that those who favor it do so precisely and exactly for the reason that we believe the league would be a good thing for America, or that we want the league not because we believe it will benefit Europe but because we believe it will benefit America.

That is exactly what we do believe and that is precisely why we want the league.

Previous to the Great War we didn't have a league, and what happened? Aside from what happened to the other nations, the United States, as one evil result of the old conditions—the non-league conditions—lost a hundred thousand lives and thirty billion dollars.

Those who agree with President Wilson want a league primarily for the reason that we believe it will be a step toward avoiding a repetition of such losses.

Foes of the league say it will cause more wars. Well, without a league we were drawn into a war greater than all other wars combined, and if the league were as bad as its opponents contend, it couldn't possibly have a worse result than that, while it might achieve a happier end which is the most that its proponents hope for it.

That truth cannot be denied even by Lodge, Borah and Johnson, that greatest triumvirate of political wool pullers that ever blinded the vision or befuddled the minds of that distressingly large number of Americans who are incapable of doing their own thinking and who parrot-like, repeat the silly Senatorial shouts and shrieks about "un-Americanism," and "super-government," and "surrender of sovereignty."

To us it seems that those Americans who favor a continuation of the system which cost us so many lives and so many billions of dollars are themselves un-American.

But we don't bring that charge against them. There are arguments enough for the league without accusing its opponents of mental treason. On the contrary we simply set them down as blind dupes of the Republican politicians who hate Woodrow Wilson with a hatred so bitter that they found cause for rejoicing in his critical illness, and for no reason in the world except that he, and not they, was in charge of the country through some of the greatest years in its history.

Why not think of America a little? Why not indeed? Why not think a little more of America and a little less about helping a lot of Republican boneheads to vent their personal spite against a president who has the proud distinction of being hated just as bitterly as Abraham Lincoln was hated, and by exactly the same breed of enemies.

Put me down for Cox, mostly because of his own worth, but partly because a vote for him is an endorsement of Mr. Wilson, who, I firmly believe, will be adjudged by history as our third great president.

SUPPORTS CHINA'S MODEL TUCHUN

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: In your August 27 paper, I very much appreciated an article written by Mr. Swan Senn, entitled "Tsao Kun asked dismissal of China's Model Tuchun." I have read it over repeatedly and at last I find what Mr. Swan Senn has said is altogether what I wish to say.

It is my opinion that the political parties are by no means destructive to a nation so long as they can promote public welfare—so long they can supply what the public demands. By competition, they can improve the nation, politically as well as civilly. The United States of America is the best example today. But on the other hand, when they try to ignore the public and do their own will, they deserve to be cast aside. So it is a wrong idea for the Chihli Party to think the downfall of the Anfu Club is due to their military power. If water supports a boat, it can also sink her. So with public opinion. Beware of public opinion! Public opinion has no army nor navy but it is far more powerful than those who have both. Therefore my first sincere hope is that the Chihli Party will act in compliance with public opinion.

A fortnight ago, I was visited by some of my friends who came from Shensi. I asked them: "Do the people of Shensi hate their Tuchun Nieh Shi-san who is an Anfuite as some other provinces do?" They cried out simultaneously: "No, no! He is the benefactor of the inhabitants there. He has established schools; founded technical factories; improved streets and roads; and above all he has worked with boldness for the public welfare. People like him; admire him; and honor him."

General Nieh thus is a man of honor—benevolent, enthusiastic, sympathetic and reformative. Does China need such men today? Does she have many such at present? Truly speaking, China thirstily desire such men at such a momentous period. What General Nieh has done in Shensi is what Hon. Chang Chien has done to Nantungchow. With astonishment, therefore, I saw one morning in the paper that Tsao Kun had proposed dismissal of such a bright general who has earned the honor of being called China's Model Tuchun. Why? Cordially yours,

*WILLIAM K. SZE.

FAVORS AMERICAN MASS MEETING

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—With all due respect to the splendid effort you are making to clarify American opinion out here in regard to the League of Nations, would it not be a good idea to convene a mass meeting of Americans at which a debate could be conducted, with the paramount issue of the presidential campaign as the subject? It seems to me that Americans out here are bound to view this matter more keenly and thus more intelligently than the average home-side voter and good speakers on both sides willing to discuss the issue and to answer questions would develope a very interesting and useful meeting. Perhaps, at the end, resolutions could be adopted which would help to acquaint the voters at home with American opinion in China. Inclosing my card, I am, Yours truly,

Member National Democratic Club.

WORD FROM THE S.S. NANKING

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—There are 198 passengers on board S.S. Nanking, and all except six or seven are students. The steamer got to Yokohama yesterday noon but owing to the cholera in Shanghai, she was detained in the harbor for 24 hours and she has just anchored at the jetty. The voyage has been very enjoyable, good weather and calm sea. Practically none has been seriously sea-sick and few felt uneasy.

The private students on board outnumber the Tsing Hwa and government students and they have formed themselves into a body to co-operate with the former. The Christian students are keeping morning watches regularly and Sunday service was held the 29th. Lectures of various kinds are given by the student body to the steerage passengers who are very attentive and enthusiastic to learn things about their own country. All boys and crew, strange to say, are very earnest in the expression of thought about national affairs, and, we must say, very patriotic. They know that their government needs reform and new force in order to eradicate the corruption.

This is the birthday of the Japanese Emperor and there is celebration everywhere in Japan. Yours truly,

Chinese Students Aboard S.S. Nanking.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE

In these days of the New Rich, "Hints on Etiquette" should have a tremendous sale, but though I had not read my own copy for a long time, I doubt if even in the very latest editions any hint is given on the following problem in deportment:

At a crowded church social the other day, I saw an unfortunate young man in a somewhat awkward predicament. With a bath bun in one hand and a cup of tea in the other, he was looking anxiously about him for the milk. Suddenly a waitress loomed in sight, and, taking the bath bun between his teeth, he seized a milk jug from her tray as she passed. Before he had time to replace it, however, the waitress was lost in the crowd, leaving him somewhat awkwardly stranded, in the middle of the big room.

There was no table in sight. He could not drink his tea because the bun was in his mouth; he could not remove the bun because the milk jug was in his hand; he could not swallow the bun because it was too big, and he could not blow it through a window, peashooter fashion, because that sort of thing is not being done.

At this precise moment, whom should he see wending his way towards him but the vicar, with outstretched hand and words of welcome on his lips. (As it happened, it was a good thing for my young friend that he had the bath bun in his mouth; he could not say what he felt, and it saved his reputation!) Now, what ought he to have done—that's the problem. Should he have dropped the bun on the floor—laying it as an offering at the vicar's feet, so to speak—and holding the jug in his mouth have seized the vicar's proffered hand (spilling the milk down his shirt front the while)? Or should he—no? Let other people chivvy their brains about it! I give it up.

YOU'RE THROUGH

The Deluded Bachelor, clad in a dressing gown, walked slowly towards the telephone, which rested on the little side table. Seating himself languidly, he picked up the receiver and listened.

Only two or three minutes had elapsed when he cried "South 1234!" He settled down comfortably to read the correspondence columns of the paper. He had scarcely finished the first epistle when he gave a start and cleared his throat,

"It that you my Eastern Girl?" he gasped.

There was a pause.

"But it can't be, it's impossible!" he shouted, excitedly. Another pause followed.

Deluded Bachelor clawed feverishly at the table-cloth.

"Good Heavens, my Eastern Girl" he groaned, while a glassy look came over his eyes; "I can't realise it!"

With a crash the telephone dropped to the floor and Deluded Bachelor fell forward senseless across the table.

He had got the right number the first time.

Von Kluck Writes On The War

The March On Paris And The Battle Of The Marne, 1914. By Alexander von Kluck, Generaloberst. With portrait and maps and notes by the Historical Section (Military Branch) of the Committee of Imperial Defense. New York: Longmans, Green & Co., London: Edwin Arnold Pp. 174. $3.50.

BY WALTER LITTLEFIELD

The name of von Kluck, commander of the First German Army in the invasion of Belgium and of France, the battle of the Marne, and the retreat to the Aisne, figured largely in the despatches from the seat of war in August and September, 1914; then it quite disappeared only to be revived by a brief note in December saying that the owner had been wounded and retired.

And now Alexander von Kluck, Generaloberst, has written a book about his Belgian and French adventure. It was completed in February, 1918, on the eve of the great German offensive in Picardy. It takes no note of the host of books, reports, pamphlets, which have been published since then; during its writing the author was at the disadvantage of having at hand only the British and French published reports and reviews. It is, therefore, the personal observations, impressions and opinions of a commanding General who reviews his own actions in the quietude of his study and illustrates them with the orders issued to him and by him, but with very little information beyond the maneuvers of his own army in the field and almost none of the enemy.

This limitation as to scope and information, however, is more than compensated for by the wealth of important German orders and documents presented, which will be of great value to future historians, and by the personality of the author who clearly shows that he is a disciple of Hannibal and Caesar rather than of Napoleon and von Moltke. He is revealed as a General of action rather than of organisation, of strategy rather than of tactics. He never lost sight of his military objective, but he rarely had a clear perception of the tactics by which he was to reach it and maintain himself after he got there.

His book lacks the attractive personality and humor of Ludendorff's, the intimate observations of von Hindenburg's. It is not a popular book, like General Maurice's "Forty Days in 1914," covering about the same period. It is a monograph written by an aged, didactic soldier for soldiers of similar training. There is nothing picturesque about it. All the same, as has been said, the military historian will find therein a mine of academic information which he cannot afford to leave unexplored.

Evidently the sub-title to the book, "The Battle of the Marne," is a characterisation of the British editors, for the author calls it "The Battle on the Ourcq" and devotes the last third of the book to it. All through the war the Marne meant nothing more to the Germans than their two nearest approaches to Paris, the first in August, 1914, and the second in July, 1918. But von Kluck goes too far when he says that the French never spoke of their victory of the Marne until months afterward, although he quotes an unknown French author (page 145) as his authority on that point.

Still, if the British editors have given the book a title which shall more pointedly appeal to readers of English, they have also furnished the book with something far more important: Footnotes by the experts of the Committee of Imperial Defense. These notes check up von Kluck's data, correct his errors, and often qualify his conclusions. They add greatly to the value of the book, for they are composed by men who possessed knowledge which the author could not possibly possess, and with a full appreciation of his military point of view and all the advantages and disadvantages, merits and demerits, of his education, personality, and environment.

Von Kluck had never been a staff officer when, at the age of 68, on August 2, 1914, he was appointed to the command of the First Army which was to form the right wing of the invasion, and whose advance and that of the second were to regulate the pace. It was to assemble at Stettin, be transported to Grevenbroich, and march through Aix-la-Chapelle on its way into Belgium on August 10. The Belgians held it up for three days. After the Liege forts fell, Pontisse on August 12:

"According to information received and the general opinion at Army Headquarters, it was not thought likely that the main portion of the Belgian Army would operate as a combined force. If this proved to be the case, it was a most favorable circumstance for the success of the First Army in the difficult task of emerging from the defile of Aix-la-Chapelle-Vise-Herstal in columns twenty to forty-five miles long. Events would have shaped very differently had the Belgian Army succeeded in offering, or even had it been intended to offer, an energetic resistance to the advance of the First and Second Armies with its whole force, basing its operations on Liege, Huy and Namur, and preventing the bursting open of the line of forts; a most serious lost of time would thereby have been imposed upon the German flank armies. And in the eventual course of a struggle of nations, a saving of time means, besides much else, a saving of the precious lives of gallant and devoted warriors.

"Every leader should be alive to this fundamental principle, daily, hourly, and, above all, in times of crises. And this is true, first and foremost, of the army commander; for his example will inspire the mental attitude of all his subordinates."

This, therefore, is the keynote to von Kluck's character—time. He seems to have little just sense of the vast actual organisation which alone can give "time" its military value. He did not realise that when, on August 18, the First and Second Armies were placed) under the command of von Bulow, the commander of the second, it was with a view to curtail his precipitous use of time. He would have rushed to the Belgian coast and have met the British on landing. Only, they didn't land on the Belgian coast, and had he arrived there, he would have been completely isolated by the Belgians.

On the other hand, von Kluck rightly considered that while for some time the movements of the Second Army would be tactical, those of the First would be strategic, and hence the commander of the First would not have a free hand if placed under the orders of the commander of the Second. But with the landing of the British troops on the French coast, the function of the Second Army became at once more strategic, and continued until the investment of Maubeuge, which left von Kluck a free hand with the British at Le Cateau and the Mons series of battles. Long before this, however, von Kluck contends that he could have outflanked the British if allowed to maneuver further to the westward:

"The commander of the Second Army urged that the First Army should keep close in to the Second, whereas it really needed a greater freedom of maneuver in order to carry out its allotted task, which was still primarily of a strategic nature, and intended to open the way to tactical successes. The decision of the Second Army commander had its influence on the course of the operations against the British, and for days embarrassed the plans of the First Army commander and his Chief of Staff.

"At noon on August 21 a report arrived at Louvain by wireless that the 2nd, 4th and 9th Cavalry Divisions were assembled under General von der Marwitz near Ath, and were under the orders of the Second Army commander. Thus, regrettably, the First Army was not to have any large body of cavalry at its disposal, a serious deprivation in view of the need for rapid operations during the wheeling movement of the army."

Had he been allowed to maneuver at will and abide to deploy sufficient cavalry, von Kluck believed that the First Army could have outflanked the British Army from the west, forced it back upon the French Fifth Army, and thus in the ensuing confusion, taken them both in the rear. With this, as a premise, it is easy for von Kluck to account for the future series of British escapes. After quoting the British Commander in Chief's despatch on the events of August 25, von Kluck observes:

"These were normal measures demanded by the circumstances, but the chief factor that enabled the British Army to escape was that the German First Army lacked the effective means of making it stand and fight—namely, the three divisions which composed Marwitz's cavalry corps. The change of command having taken place when it was on the march Ath-Schelde-Courtrai, this corps did not come under the direct orders of the First Army till the evening of the 24th, and even though the right flank of the First Army was constantly being kept back for the purpose, the cavalry corps was unable to accomplish its task of first taking the British Army in the flank and then getting behind it."

As a matter of fact, however, Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien did make a stand at Le Cateau, even against orders, so why von Kluck should lay the blame upon the absence of Marwitz is hard to see. The Germans call the battle of Le Cateau the battle of Solesmes. It is evident from the account von Kluck gives of it that he was not in a position to observe the movements at first hand. On the evening after that battle, however, the First Army was returned to its independent command. Then, in the first days of September, came the famous south-south-east movement of the German right wing. Von Kluck had himself suggested it to von Bulow on August 28, but when it came in the form of an order from the Supreme Command, von Kluck became critical:

"The First Army commander considered that to force the enemy away from Paris in a southeasterly direction (which would involve the passage of the Marne and the Seine) would be a difficult and risky undertaking. There would probably be initial successes, but it would be scarcely possible in the circumstances to continue the offensive until the enemy was decisively defeated or partially annihilated. Another group of four or five divisions was needed by the armies on the German right wing, in order effectively to guard the right flank against Paris and protect the long communications of the First and Second Armies, if the advance was to be continued into the center of France.

"The Supreme Command, however, seemed to be firmly convinced that the garrison of Paris need not be taken into account for any operations outside the line of forts of the capital. It is true that all the reports up to date seemed to confirm this point of view, but the situation of the flank armies might and would be most dangerous as soon as the French Higher Command was in a position to move mass of troops from a part of the front where they could be spared through Paris, and thence begin a big offensive, making use of the great facilities for deployment from behind its extensive line of forts."

The maneuver was, nevertheless, executed; as the world now knows, von Kluck's fears were more than realised. Even so, his usual precipitation made the situation measurably worse. He had been ordered to follow en echelon with the First the advance of the Second Army, thereby contracting the right wing and protecting the right rear flank. Instead of that, he preceded the Second Army. His excuse was that if he had halted long enough to get en echelon behind the Second Army two days would have been lost, and in that time the enemy's Higher Command would have regained complete freedom of action of which it had been deprived.

This brings us to the battle of the Marne, which the Germans call the battle of Ourcq, regarding General Maunoury's attack with the Sixth French on the German flank at that river, the German withdrawal to the Marne, and then beyond the Aisne as one continuous performance which should take its name from the initial step.

If we conventionalise the plan of battle we may imagine the armies directly engaged lying in the form of a capital letter L with the city of Paris west of the upper part of the perpendicular line, which divides, from north to south, von Kluck's army from Maunoury with the French Sixth, the British Army, and the French Fifth under d'Esperey, while the horizontal line divides part of von Kluck's from part of d'Esperey, and von Bulow and von Hausen with the German Second and Third from the French Ninth and Fourth, commanded, respectively, by Foch and de Laigle.

The orders of von Kluck plainly show that his sole objective was to force the enemy to stand and defeat him, but this could only be done, as he observes, without four or five new divisions needed to protect his right flank from an attack by the Paris garrison and keep open his long lines of communication to the north. The orders of the German Supreme Command show that, while its obvious objective was the same, there was the contributing, unexpressed influence of the lure of the City of Light. But neither von Kluck nor the German Supreme Command knew the strength of the new French Sixth and Ninth (in early reports called the Seventh) Armies—how Gallieni—as Military Governor of Paris, would be able to reinforce the Sixth with a masterly stroke of tactics, or how Foch would be able to maneuver the Ninth with a similar stroke of strategy. But what both should have known, and probably did know, was the fact that the gap between von Kluck and von Bulow, begun when the latter left an army corps to cover Maubeuge, was broadened to between thirty and forty miles, when von Kluck withdrew from von Bulow two other corps to withstand the assaults of Maunoury and Galieni. Von Kluck complains that the south-southeast movement should not have been made without the aid of four or five new divisions, but what made the need of these divisions felt was that by going too far south he had exposed his flank to the unknown quality at Paris and von Bulow to the unknown quantity and quality of Foch.

To the disadvantage of the Supreme Command he quotes Plutarch's words from Chabrias to the effect that the greatest commander is one who knows best what is going on behind the enemy's lines, and Caesar, to his own advantage: "In great and dangerous operations one must act, not think." But Gallieni, as events were to show, better appreciated Chabrias, and Foch Caesar. As for Joffre, according to our author, he tried to do what Hannibal had done at Cannae and failed (German military men are very fond of citing Cannae in explaining their defeat at the Marne). Still, he is good enough

Choosing A Husband

BY REV. DR. J. R. STRATON

(Pastor Cavalry Baptist Church, New York City)

The word husband comes from two Anglo-Saxon words "Hus" and "Bonda," meaning literally the house bond or house master. The husband, therefore, is the head of the home, and is the one who is expected to bind it together in the bonds of happiness, youthfulness and success. But he is to do this, not as a tyrant, but as a partner in a firm.

I once heard of a young couple who married, and the young man said to his wife, "I have always been accustomed to having family prayers in my father's home. Let us establish this custom in our home." The wife was a Christain young woman, and this delighted her. So in the morning her husband took down the Bible and read from Ephesians 5:22-23:

"Wives submit yourselves unto your own husbands as unto the Lord, for the husband is the head of the wife; therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in everything."

He read this Scripture and then knelt down and prayed. The next morning he read the same Scripture, and so on each morning, until the wife's curiosity was aroused to see if the Bible had really outlined such a one-sided procedure. So she turned to the passage in Ephesians, and, following the verses that the young man read each morning, she found these words:

"Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also the church and gave Himself for it."

So the next morning when he read his same old verse, she said: "Please read on, John, a little further." And he read on, and then the home got into right balance.

A woman should choose as a husband a man who realises the sacred responsibilities of marriage. The young woman who allows herself to be fascinated by the flippant, cigarette-smoking, beer-drinking, girl-ogling, swaggering, swearing type of youth, is playing with her own destiny. A husband ought to be a man, and not a mere biped in breeches, who has had the marriage ceremony pronounced over him. No preacher makes a husband by marrying a man to a woman. The stuff for the making of a husband has to be in the man before marriage.

Again, the choice of a husband should be for love, and not for money or mere expediency; and by love should be understood affection and congeniality in the highest sense of those terms. Sound sense and not silly sentiment should guide in a matter as important as this. The essence of love is not giddy gush nor embryonic idiocy, but the desire to help and serve the one who is loved. Love, in its last analysis, is not a word, but an action. Unless devotion translates itself into deeds it is a delusion that will lead to despair.

But while a young woman should choose for love only, she certainly ought to choose a husband who is able to support her. A woman should have in these days of stress a reasonable assurance of a man's ability to sustain a household. We cannot live on ambrosia and love lyrics. It requires beefsteaks and biscuits and bonnets galore to maintain a happy home life under the conditions of today.

Even happiness has a practical basis. Love is liable to limp when the mouth is scantily fed and the body poorly clothed, unless because of emergencies which could not be foreseen. If hard times in the home come through sickness or misfortune, then a true woman will prove herself a heroine and will accept the humblest and most meagre of conditions with fortitude. Womanhood has proved her devotion through all the ages. Her willingness to sacrific always tends to bind hearts together. But if a woman's sacrifices are made necessary by sheer improvidence and foolish thoughtlessness it makes a vast difference.

I am a great believer in matrimony, and I believe also that, for the most part, men and women ought to marry when they are young; but I also believe that the cost of beefsteak in this modern day ought to be stated in red ink on the margin of the marriage license, and that the price of Paris bonnets ought to be pinned to each one of Cupid's arrows!

Above all, a young woman in making this vital choice ought to choose a good man. I do not mean a goody-goody man, but a good man in the good old-fashioned sense of that term—honorable, honest, industrious, sober and true. The only basis for domestic happiness, concord and peace is mutual worth and moral character. That is true of all friendship and married life ought to exemplify friendship in its highest and noblest expression.

On The Roof of the World

The breeze on the roof of the World affects the fur of the Tibetan Fox. The result is long heavy lustrous Fur. The locality here in some places more than 15,000 feet above the level of the sea, produces fox coats of long dense downy fur and over-hair of exquisite fineness and beauty, and in instances of great value. Only the prime skins are selected for you and no skin is sent out less than 45 inches in length, pelt and tail. You can have one of these Tibetan Fox skins by sending a Chinese Post Office Money order for $25 to MR. ELLY WIDLER, TA TSING-LU, SZECHWAN PROVINCE, and he will immediately mail you one of these specially selected Tibetan For Skins.

Von Kluck Writes On The War

to throw this sop to Joffre and the French General Staff:

"Though the enemy must be given full credit for the idea, the result of it cannot have come up to his expectations. Hannibal in his wonderfully planned battle mastered the fortune of war, whereas it eluded Joffre confronted as he was by leaders who grasped the situation—and reversed it. To be named in the same breath as the Punic General is, however, an honorable recognition for leaders of our times on whichever side they stood in this titanic struggle."

General Gallieni ordered Maunoury to be prepared to attack von Kluck's right flank. On September 4 Joffre ordered a general preparation for September 5, to be executed the next day. This order also implied maneuvers by the British and extracted them from the Fifth, Ninth and Fourth French Armies.

"According to a report from the Supreme Command, General Joffre had ordered the general attack of the French armies for about the decisive battle. [It is stated by various German writers that a copy of General Joffre's orders was captured.—Foot-note by the British editors.] If this was true, the fate of the French offensive, in the opinion of the First Army commander, would depend on the strength and success of the attack delivered from Paris against the flank of the German armies. In order not merely to repulse the enemy in that quarter, but to defeat him by an outflanking counterattack from the north, the 9th and 3rd Corps were ordered to march early on the morning of September 7 in the direction of La Ferte Milon-Crouy, and their relations to the Second Army as regards instructions given them by it were cancelled."

It is likely that the maneuver of the 9th and 3rd Corps of von Bulow did save von Kluck's right flank from Maunoury and Gallieni, but it exposed his left to d'Esperey and von Bulow himself to Foch. Human nature, however well disciplined, could not withstand such an opportunity, and so von Kluck's left and the armies of von Bulow and von Haussen were hurled back before Gallieni had a chance to complete his local flanking movement and Joffre his great movement of envelopment, but no one will question the wisdom of the German Supreme Command in ordering a general withdrawal from its south-southeastern maneuver, although the attempt to do so proved to be the Gettysburg of the war. Still, the comparison with Cannae is only fitting in its strategic, not in its tactical, aspects, for although von Kluck overreached himself just as the Roman Consuls, Paulus and Varro, did, Hannibal had a fresh army with which to complete the victory, while Joffre's army had been fighting a series of retreating movements for over a month.

New York Bank In Smart London

Keeps Open Office On Historic Site And Next Door To King Edward's Old Club

London, July 7.—The Guaranty Trust Company of New York is keeping open house for visitors to inspect its new West End quarters on Pall Mall, the heart of London clubland and near the center of the hotel, shopping and theater district.

The office stands on the site of one of the most famous literary gathering places of the eighteenth century—the bookshop at the sign of "Tully Head." It was kept by Robert Dodsley, footman, poet and playwright, who made enough money in that capacity to set up as publisher and bookseller. He published Sterne's "Tristram Shandy" and many other "best sellers" of the day, and his shop was a favorite meeting place of Pope, Burke, Johnson, Chesterfield, Goldsmith, Sterne, Walpole, Garrick, Reynolds and other great men of the day.

The new office is decorated and furnished in the style of the early eighteenth century, when the plain, simple taste of the age of Queen Anne was giving way to the more decorative and classical style being introduced in England by artists and travellers returning from the Continent.

The building stands next to the famous Marlborough Club, which was founded by the late King Edward when he was Prince of Wales as a place where he could meet and not as a royal personage.
